

Processor

The diagram illustrates the memory hierarchy with three components arranged horizontally. On the left is a light blue rounded rectangle labeled 'Processor'. In the center is a yellow rounded rectangle labeled 'Cache'. On the right is a light purple rounded rectangle labeled 'Main Memory'. The rectangles are separated by white space, indicating the flow of data from the processor through the cache to the main memory.

Cache

Main
Memory